Death of an Infant.
On May the eighteenth the Death Angel entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Holt and took their infant daughter home to be with Jesus. She was only given to us for eight short days, but in that time we learned to look for her bright smile. How we do miss her! On Monday that fatal disease, jaundice, seized her in its terrible grasp. We had very little hopes for her recovery from the beginning, but she wrestled with life and death for three days and it seemed at times as if she would be allowed to stay with us. All that loving and skillful hands could do was done, but God needed and wanted her for himself.

Rain Brings A Business Rush And All Smile

The Veritable Deluge of Sunday Night and Yesterday Gets Warm Welcome

A six weeks drought, covering the greater portion of this state and sections of adjoining states, was ended shortly after midnight Sunday, at which time a veritable deluge of rain began to fall and continued throughout much of yesterday and last night.

Smile. You bet they did. The merchants fairly radiated the gladness beams. On the streets you could easily tell the difference in the "good morning" greeting. The bank clerks greeted customers with a smile, the like of which is seldom seen, and about the drug stores "rain" was the sole gossip.

One of Anderson's tailors told a reporter at noon yesterday that he had done more business during the morning than any two days last week.

"Not less than 15 of my rural customers were in the store Saturday to tell me that they didn't want their suits until it rained. In fact, said they didn't expect to take them out until a season came. Well, it surely came last night and today we began business with a rush."

The above is characteristic of stories heard all about town. Many stood in the streets yesterday afternoon, bare-headed and coatless, and smilingly let the joy-juice soak in. The outlook for the past two weeks was far from reassuring, and even the most optimistic had reached the point where it was difficult to "talk weather" in their customary dobanair manner.

"Even motoring was no pleasure Sunday," an Anderson man told the reporter. A party of us went out for a short spin Sunday afternoon, but soon returned to the city and backed our dusty car into the garage and sought out a shady spot and ordered lemonades.

A man in the hospital said it had been so frightfully hot and dusty that day-time sleep was simply out of the question. He said he had lain in the bed for hours, gazing through the window at the hot stifling atmosphere and blue sky and prayed that rain would fall.

It doesn't seem possible that one rain could so revolutionize business sentiment, a man was heard to say on the streets. He asserted, though, that on all sides yesterday he met a spirit of cheerfulness that had been lacking about town for several weeks.

ANNOUNCE 1917 SERIES OF THE CROW ELK-HART

Local Motorists Are Enthusiastic Over Exceptional Values

D. P. and W. P. Sloan, local Crow Elk-hart dealers, today announced the new 1917 series of cars of the Crow Motor Car company, Elk-hart, Indiana.

Local motorists waxed enthusiastic over the exceptional values offered in the two models, the touring model, 5 passenger, 112 inch wheel base and the "cloverleaf" roadster, 3 passenger built on the same chassis as the touring car.

The touring car is large and roomy and is built along approved 1917 streamlines. The "cloverleaf" roadster body is given credit for being the most beautiful roadster body built and possesses lines and good looks that few cars can surpass.

D. P. and W. P. Sloan, Crow Elk-hart dealers, said: "Both cars are exceptionally large, though light in weight, the touring model weighing 2,040 pounds. Weight is very equally distributed, front and rear, giving exceptionally roadability and riding comfort. There is not 35 pounds difference between the front and rear weights of the car."

The motor of the car is unique in many features and contains some engineering niceties created by Martin E. Crow, president of the company. The motor has a detachable head and piston ring port holes for the conservation of oil, and the prevention of smoking. The motor is long stroke, 4 cylinder type, cast in bloc, with 3 1/2 inch bore and 5 inch stroke. It develops 34.9 h. p. on brake test. Pistons are removable through the bottom of the crank case and consists of a press steel oil well.

Their cooling system is a large honey-comb radiator that is particularly efficient in all climates. Aero-plane type of fan is used. The ignition is the Connecticut type. Lubrication consists of a constant level system, pressure feed to the bearings. There is an oil indicator and filter also. The carburetor is the Zenith float feed type with hot air supply and adjustment. There is a choke for the carburetor on the instrument board.

The Crow Elk-hart "20" both touring model and roadster, uses the design of dry plate clutch created by the Crow Elk-hart company. It is completely enclosed in a housing and consists of 4 plates which are extremely durable.

The transmission of the car is unique for year of this price range. It is the first 4 speed type three shaft gear train that reverses and is placed under the rear axle. The Crow Motor Car company have been building this car for 4 years and it gives exceptional efficiency.

"I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed the affected parts with the Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment three or four times a day and I was healed inside of a month." Signed Vera M. Stanton, 1230 Norton St., New York City, May 22, 1915.
